

60-KW TQG...

TAKING A BAD STEP

HEY...
YOU'RE GONNA
BREAK
MY BACK!

The skid-mounted 60-KW tactical quiet generator (TQG) is suffering under the weight of some big-foot abuse.

Located right in the middle of the left-side skid is the fuel drain. If you need to look on top of the generator or over it, that fuel drain seems like the perfect place to step. But the drain was never meant to take on that kind of weight. You'll bend or break the pipe and bust off the T-valve.

Sure, you might get away with it a few times—maybe you already have—but eventually something is going to snap. Then you'll have a dangerous mess on your hands and a piece of equipment that is NMC.

So keep your big foot off the fuel drain. And put your big paw on the shoulder of your pals that you see doing it and give them the word, too.

