

If you deal with inventories of repair parts or bench stock, you know the importance of good storage systems. They help organize your work area and expand supply space. By making it easier to stock and retrieve parts, they can spell the difference between finding what you need quickly or not finding it at all.

One recommended place to look for storage supplies is the GSA Global Supply website: <https://www.gsaglobalsupply.gsa.gov>

In order to search the site, you'll need a user ID and password. Click on Register Here on the left-hand side of the home page. On the next screen the website will ask you to submit personal information and to create a user ID and password.

Once you're registered, enter the word bin in the search field. You'll be connected to a wide selection of storage bins. Here's what you'll find:

- bins that stack on top of one another
- others that sit on shelving or hang from racks, rails and carts
- heavy-duty plastic bins that are water-, rust- and corrosion-proof
- a variety of sizes and colors
- bins on dollies
- bins that protect electronic components against electro-static discharge
- optional accessories such as dividers, label holders and bin cups
