

Sights...

A Better Case for Cases

Dear Editor,

Here at Ft Leonard Wood, we run into situations where the storage cases for night vision and small arms sights are either difficult to replace or don't do a good job protecting the sights. And some sights don't come with storage cases.

We've found that the Pelican company is a good source for storage cases of all types. They sell cases that have pull-and-pluck foam that allows you to fashion exactly the space needed inside the case for the particular sight. The sight is protected on all sides with the foam, so there's almost no chance it can be damaged.

Pelican has a military catalog that can be accessed online:

http://pelican.com/pdf/Military_Catalog_Final.pdf

The catalog includes the dimensions of the inside and outside of each case, foam depth, and the case's NSN.

And the cases have a lifetime warranty.

Editor's note: It is better to spend a few dollars on a good storage case for your sights than thousands replacing a sight. You can probably find similar storage cases at your local large discount home repair store. Thanks for the tip!
