

Training...

Go With the FLO

Are Financial Liability Investigation of Property Loss (FLIPL) requirements turning into your worst nightmare? Now, training materials are available online for financial liability officers (FLOs), offering both new and experienced FLOs a terrific resource.

The Financial Liability Officer Orientation (sustainment training) course provides a solid foundation for NCOs (E7 and above), officers and civilians (GS-7 and above) and others who may have to tackle FLO duties.

The course is approximately one hour of multimedia instruction. The interactive format makes learning easier. Plus, referenced Army Regulations (ARs) are tabbed at your fingertips, so you can study the ARs right there.

Most importantly, you'll learn how to correctly conduct and document an investigation from start to finish.

So, take some time to brush up on those investigative skills—and bust the FLIPL blues:

<https://atiam.train.army.mil/>

Note: On the Web site, click the RDL Services tab. Select the radio button Commandant Approved Training, the dropdown type as Courseware and the school as Quartermaster. Choose CD 101-91.

Bonus: If you can't finish the course in one session, your place in the lesson is automatically saved where you stop. You can return later and pick up where you left off.

For more information, contact Winston (Chuck) Mullins at DSN 539-2190, (804) 765-2190, or email:

winston.mullins@conus.army.mil

